

The radio stations should go back to the small owner, and be under local control. Today on TV it showed where Clear Channel has over 1000 channels and the CEO stated that he was not interested in the local communities only the revenues. He refused to air the warning of a Hazardous Materials spill, the only radio channel in town, now owned by Clear Channel, only played canned music. Give the airwaves back to the people. The Alameda or some other group could take over our airwaves very easily with the control in so few, non-local hands. Also there should be a ban on more than 8 commercials an hour. We also need more public service broadcasting like NPR, etc. Also the FCC did not answer my question why FCC Michael Fox was not funded to hold open comment meeting in at least the top 20 cities. He was given no funding at all. What is going on in America? Thank God for Bill Moyers and his NOW program or I would have not even known there was an open season.
